How it Works

Detox Ion Cleansing Spa uses ionization technology to detoxify your body. Through this technology, harmful substances can be discharged from the body. The scientists Peter Agre and Roderick MacKinnon received the Nobel Prize in Chemistry in 2003 for their leads to this technology. Treatment is given by placing your feet into a tub of distilled water with sea salt. The ions in your body become charged and attract toxins. The array (the black unit in the water) uses bio-electrical energy to attract and pull toxins from the body through the thousands of pores in the feet. The process takes about 25-30 minutes.

What to Expect After a Cleanse

Immediately after a detoxification session, some people feel more energetic, others may feel slightly tired. The cells in the body have been cleansed and recharged; because of the energy the body used in this process, it takes time to rebalance itself. Drink plenty of water to continue cleansing and rebalancing the body for 24 hours after your session.
